DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

1. Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:
  - I. Claims 1-11, drawn to a method to determine whether a first substance interacts with a second substance, classified in class 435, subclass 7.1.
  - II. Claims 12-22, drawn to a method to identify a compound which interferes with the interaction of a first substance with a second substance, classified in class 436, subclass 536.
  - III. Claims 23-26, drawn to a compound, classified in class 530, subclass 387.1.
  - IV. Claims 27-29, drawn to a kit, classified in class 435, subclass 975.
2. Inventions I and II are unrelated. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different modes of operation, different functions, or different effects (MPEP § 806.04, MPEP § 808.01). In the instant case the different inventions are not disclosed as capable of use together and have different modes of operation and different functions. Invention I is a method to determine whether a first substance interacts with a second substance whereas Invention II is a method to identify a compound which interferes with the interaction of a first substance with a second substance. Further, Invention II requires the presence of a candidate compound and comparing the signal produced in the presence of the candidate compound with the signal produced in the absence of the candidate compound and Invention I does not require these limitations.

3. Inventions I and III are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process such as the process of Invention II.

4. Inventions I and IV are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process such as the process of Invention II.

5. Inventions II and III are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process such as the process of Invention I.

6. Inventions II and IV are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process such as the process of Invention I.

7. Inventions III and IV are independent and distinct Inventions. Invention III is directed to a compound of the formula X-A whereas Invention IV is directed to a kit. The inventions are not disclosed as capable of use together. Further, Invention IV requires containers and Invention III does not require this limitation. Also, Invention III requires a portion of a receptor and Invention IV does not require this limitation.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, and the search required for one group is not required for other restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
